emulate Rasulullaah ﷺ and the Sahabah رَضِيَ اللهُ عَنْهُمْ in spending their lives and wealth for the sake of Islaam. It was needed to encourage them to travel and migrate for Deen, to assist others doing the same and to teach them the virtues of good deeds and noble character. A book was needed of such reports which when read, would cause the reader to fade into the background just as rivers lose themselves in the ocean and just as even a tall man would seem tiny in front of a towering mountain. In this way, they would begin to doubt the status of their conviction, they would regard their religious efforts to be inadequate (when compared to Sahbah رَضِيَ اللهُ عَنْهُمْ) and then would give no importance to their lives in this world. The result would be that they would develop the courage to make greater efforts and resolutions.

Allaah تَعَالَى had willed that the credit of writing such a valuable book should go to Hadhrat Sheikh Muhammad Yusuf رَضِيَ اللهُ عَنْهُ. In addition to the credit he received for his tremendous contribution to the effort of Da'wah. Therefore, despite his exhaustive commitments and a schedule filled with travels, lectures and meetings with delegations and guests - the furthest one could get from the life of a writer - he drew great courage and resolved to involve himself in writing with the guidance and help of Allaah تَعَالَى. As difficult as it were to combine the life of a writer with that of a preacher, he succeeded in completing a commentary of the famous book "Sharhu Ma'aanil Aathaar" written by the eminent Imaam Tahaawi رَضِيَ اللهُ عَنْهُ. This commentary, titled "Amaanil Ahbaar", was
